GENERAL TRADE.

The market was stagnant in every department yesterday, and presented an unpleasant resemblance to "fly-time," while prices had a seneral tendency to droop. The St. Louis Republican, of Tuesday, reports the market depressed there; flour dull, common and medium grades lower; wheat lower; oats in light demand and lower; corn plenty, with little business doing. Of the provision trade the Republican says: "Provisions were in no more favorable phase than last week, for nearest comparison, but also for the year. It must, however, be estimated that there is no speculative possibility in connection with the products, and that this void creates the prevailing stagnancy of the trade. Too much hog and summer packing, and too much nog and summer packing, and too much product also have their depressing effect upon demand and market values, and the movement drags discouragingly and unremuneratively. Yesterday the market for all the product was spiritless, weak and lower in buyers' and sellers' views." The same paper quotes cornmeal, city made and delivered, lower, $2 10@2 15, and eggs were 6 4c, and

The Gold Dust had a good-trip on when she passed down for New Orleans yesterday. She swings her big anchor with becoming dignity.
The Hard Cash had a fair trip out for White river yesterday, including a good com pany in the cabin. The principal item was Champ Chamberlain, the recent convert to Murphysim.

The Natchez Democrat, speaking of the great current obstructor J. B. M. Kehlor, suggests that she be allowed to float down stream, and be towed back by the Anchorne steamers. Captain James S. Wise's residence, in Cincinnati, which is unoccupied, was damaged to the amount of two hundred dollars, on Saturday, by fire, caused by a spark from a neighboring house.

The snagboat De Russey left yesterday morning for below. She will work between here and Vicksburg for the next two months, Whisky pulling up snags and removing obstructions from the channel of the river. The Andy Baum left for Cincinnati at the usual hour yesterday evening, with 485 bales cotton, 237 barrels oil, 50 bales paper-stock, a lot of sundries, 68 cabin passengers and 23

His youngest daughter is thirty years old. He eaves the Morgan here to go to Arkansas. We hear that fish are ripe and awful hungry up White river, and several parties are organizing for a raid on 'em. The Ruth and Hard Cash have made a schedule of special round-trip rates for such excursions. We have been practicing for the occasion, and will endeavor to make one of a party of fishermen before many moons transpire The Charles Morgan passes down for New Orleans at ten o'clock this morning. The traveling community have in her an excellent opportunity for a pleasant voyage down the river. Reliable, safe, punctual, and a swift sailer, the Morgan has become one among the most popular steamers that ever floated on the Mississippi.

ing in high terms of praise of all the steamers of the Memphis and Ohio river packet company, and commending the enterprise which, in the future, gives the trade three boats a week and increased facilities for the transaction of river business. The line is a very successful one, and can hardly be otherwise with the corps of efficient officers in charge of the different steamers. The James A special dispatch to the Cincinnati Enquir er, of Tuesday morning, gives a full account of the Sandy Fashion disaster, and intimates that a number of people are missing. About fifty passengers were on board, and all happened to be congregated in the after part of the boat. As the boat sunk in four minutes there must have been some of this throng drowned. Six women and children were on the boat and escaped in safety. The Enquir-er: "Alphonso Osborn, Ipilot, was buried here yesterday. Both his legs were broken, and he was scalded and bruised, yet he swam ashore before dying. An unknown man had his head blown off. This, with other bodies, is still in the river. Hiram Rice, colored, engineer, will recover. Cyrus and Lewis Preston, clerks, were badly scalded, cut and bruised. Harmon Liggant, cut in head and neck; John Osborn, badly scalded about the head and stomach; George Killen, pilot, arm and ribs broken: John Smith, merchant, of Mouth Pond, Kentu ky, injured, but got ashore. Several persons are still missing. The wreck will be raised to-day, and work is now going on. The banks are lined with hundreds, anxious to know the worst. Thieves in skiffs have stolen hundreds of dollars worth of floating goods. The loss is not less than twelve thousand dollars. No insurance or boat or cargo. Intense interest is manifested yet by crowds of spectators."
